

Design freedom is practically unlimited. Steel frame manufacturers and fabricators like Just Kits can produce almost any one or two home design seen in the Australian market today. Furthermore, it is possible to produce designs in steel that cannot be done with other materials. By taking advantage of this feature a home owner can often build with less expense than by using more conventional materials.